

Scoring System for Electronics Companies

The Enough Project ranks the largest electronics companies on their use of conflict-free minerals in their products.

This ranking describes actions companies are taking to contribute to a clean minerals trade in Congo and, ultimately, to reducing the conflict.

Use your consumer power to make responsible purchasing decisions. Send messages to companies you purchase from, telling them that this is important to you.

■ Companies rated 30% and over take steps to audit their supply chains, push for legislation, exercise leadership in industry-wide efforts, and have started to help Congo develop a clean trade. But they can still do more!

■ Companies rated 29% to 11% take some steps to investigate their supply chains and are members of industry-wide efforts. More action is required of them.

■ Companies rated 10% and under have done next to nothing to shift their practices toward conflict-free from Congo.

